To the Teacher

Fun for All Ages

The easy designs in this set of graphics are fun for skilled typists as well as students new to the keyboard. Also, they may be made on a computer with a word-processing diskette which accommodates 68 strokes. The teacher will find that the designs may be followed by the students with little direction necessary, for the instructions are easy to use. These graphics are created primarily with alphabet keys using few symbols or punctuation marks. Therefore, the patterns are excellent for reinforcing the location of the alpha keys and do not present tasks that are frustrating for the beginning keyboard student.

Uses of Keyboard Graphics

Keyboard graphics may be used for greetings, highlights for seasons of the year, holiday messages, illustrations for stories, covers for projects, classroom displays, bonus work, or "treats" for special days. The teacher may wish to furnish each student with a sheet of colored duplicator paper (which makes good typing paper and comes in blue, green, pink, goldenrod, etc.) to make the designs more colorful. Or, designs may be typed on white paper and then mounted on colored construction paper for greeting cards and displays.

Margin Settings and Spacing

The margin sets for both elite and pica machines are given in the box of instructions at the top of each graphic design. These settings are based on the assumption that the paper guide is always set at zero and the student is using standard 8½" x 11" paper. The line regulator is to be placed on single spacing, and for most designs the shift key should be pressed down to produce capitals (except for keys like "/"). To give the student equal top and bottom margins, the number of lines to come down to start each design is also shown.

How to Read the Directions

The young student may have difficulty keeping an eye on the line of directions. To help guide the eye, the teacher may supply each student with a 8½" x 1½" slip of paper which is to be moved down one number after each line is completed. The abbreviation "sp" stands for space, and other symbols indicate the key to be used and the number of times it is to be hit. For example: 1X 2sp 4X 5sp 5X means that you type X XXXX XXXXX.

Prepare a File of Typing Graphics

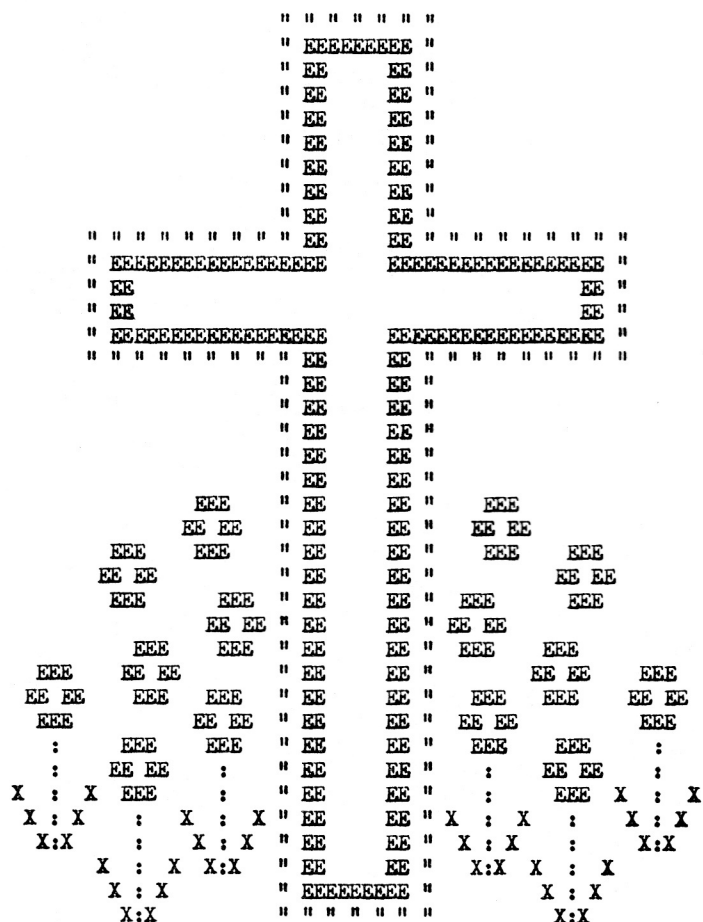

Run off a classroom set of each of the designs in this series and have them ready to use for quick lesson plans for holidays, emergencies, rewards, etc. You'll find dozens of uses for them!
